Detecting the interdependence between the Mg/Mn and Cu/Zn ratios and metal distribution, it can be concluded, that both phenomena are probably related. As metal ions are incorporated to either MFI or ERZ, the coordination chemistry is influenced by the high mobility of the mobile catalytic cations and anions. Thus, modification of cation/anion distribution and cation/cation distribution is possible when altering the Mg/Mn ratio. Conclusions {#s5} ===== The Mg/Mn ratio represents the main structural parameter of the zeolite framework. The effect of the Mg/Mn ratio on the properties of the silica-alumina support as well as on the catalytic properties of the hydrocracking catalyst were investigated. The following conclusions can be drawn: 1. The Mg/Mn ratio has a profound influence on the ZT value of the catalytic supports. 2. All zeolite support materials exhibit a reduction of the ZT value with increasing Mg/Mn ratio. The critical Mg/Mn ratio required to reach a ZT value of $25 \text{ m}^2 \cdot \text{g}^{-1}$ is in the range of 1.7--2.9. 3. ZT values between 3.6 and $18.6 \text{ m}^2 \cdot \text{g}^{-1}$ can be reached by MFI and 570a42141b
