France is renowned for its classic and artistic cuisine, much of which comes from the country's eastern regions. Of course, the cuisine of the French capital, Paris, is a bit different - in fact, much of Paris' food comes from abroad. Some of the dishes that come from abroad are the cream of Parisian cuisine. The Paris Dessert, Custard. This rich, velvety custard is made from egg yolks, which are beaten to create an airy texture. The French are fond of the custard-based desserts like crème brûlée. The French add honey to it which gives it a delicious flavor. France A Must-Have App! I have a Windows Server 2008 R2 DC, and another server with Windows Server 2008 R2 domain member. The domain member is locked down to only running the group policy client used to configure the server, unless I manually remove it. I need to be able to write to the domain member's share folder, but I'm afraid that UAC might block the connection. How can I configure UAC to allow it to access the shares? A: Found this page, this is exactly the problem I was having. All you have to do is add your domain controller as a trusted domain controller in the group policy client (Run gpupdate.exe), and that'll allow the domain member server to use the domain controller for Group Policy. Simon Jones A gift of recognition of the need for all to be recognised? On Tuesday, the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, Theresa May, announced that she would be writing to the Queen asking her to bestow a knighthood on Nigel Farage, the politician and political commentator who chairs the Leave.EU campaign to leave the EU and is himself a former leader of UKIP. David Cameron, the Prime Minister at the time, announced the same move in March 2015. He is believed to have been keen that the knighthood is not seen as an award for Farage's political success but rather a recognition of the change that has taken place in Britain's relationship with Europe. The move was met with justified derision by some, particularly those who regard Farage as an opportunist and not something of a hero for Leave.EU's success. But equally there was widespread criticism that the Prime Minister's decision has been somewhat

To assess the ability of cine magnetic resonance (MR) imaging to detect and characterize prosthetic valve regurgitation and dysfunction. Cine MR imaging and cine-gated magnetic resonance angiography (MRA) were performed in 46 patients with prosthetic valves (biological valve, n = 29; mechanical valve, n = 17; mean age 58 years; range, 30-83 years) before and after surgical and/or percutaneous or transcatheter aortic valve replacement. Cine-gradient echo imaging and a steady-state free precession (SSFP) sequence were used for the evaluation of prosthetic valve regurgitation. The severity of regurgitation was assessed by MR imaging on a four-point scale and by echocardiography. All patients underwent MR imaging within 6 months after the assessment by echocardiography. MR imaging results were correlated with those obtained by echocardiography. In 17 patients with a mechanical valve, seven acquired valvular paravalvular leaks (PVL) were seen on both cine-MR and MRA. In contrast, no PVL was seen on cine-MR in seven patients with a bioprosthetic valve. There was good agreement between MR imaging and MRA in the detection of PVL (accuracy, 93%; sensitivity, 86%; specificity, 100%). In 15 patients with mechanical valves, the severity of regurgitation was overestimated by MR imaging on a three-
