It can be found here:.A joint Public Utility Commission and Fire Chief's Office has filed for arbitration after a shoddy fix to a door that allowed an improper connection and then led to a fire in a Cleveland Heights apartment that was being renovated, which required the evacuation of two families. The door had to be permanently removed after the blaze, but the city is now appealing the arbitration claim filed by the commission, which says the fire department should pay for the door. "If they're on the hook for the door or a door, then they should be on the hook for the capital that's required to bring it back to new," said Fire Chief Thomas Dubrow, the fire chief since 2013. "There's no telling how much to bring it back." The arbitration filing asserts that the fire chief took the city to court and won in 2010 because the apartment door couldn't be properly hung on its hardware, but the fire department was required to pay for the door, a $25,000 value. The arbitration claim does not say who ordered the door. "There were multiple violations, multiple violations that were found," Dubrow said. "They were not addressed, and they were not fixed." Cuyahoga County Commissioner Jimmy Dimora, who has managed several apartments since he was a young man, would not comment on this d0c515b9f4
