As it is a way to install the new version of the Carminat TomTom SE on your computer, Protecting Niagara Protecting Niagara The Niagara river has been a big part of Canada for over 3,000 years. The river has also been a way of life for those living along it. From recreation to community, those who live on the shores of the Niagara River want to protect the river for current and future generations. Water Quality and Biodiversity The Niagara River is one of the most important rivers in Niagara, providing critical services including hydroelectric generation, drinking water, flood control, recreation, fish habitat and bird habitat. Water quality is also important. More than 90,000 people live along the Niagara River. Together, they rely on water quality and other natural resources to maintain and grow their communities. Living Niagara Wants Biodiversity We're committed to protecting and preserving Niagara's rich biodiversity and ensuring the proper use and management of the resources along the Niagara River system, while creating a clean and healthy environment for all to enjoy. Water Pollution Niagara's use of a dam for generating hydroelectricity is the single largest contributor to water pollution of the Niagara River. In some segments of the river, more than 200 million litres of untreated sewage and stormwater flows into the river each day. Living Niagara | Working Niagara | Fighting Niagara Living Niagara is working to improve water quality and protect the Niagara watershed. Our community partners are leading the way to address the root causes of pollution. We're working on solutions
